Griffin To Keep Job On Force

Member of Police Board Hits Officials For Serving Intoxicating Punch

BY WILLIAM DAWSON

That the intoxication of Patrolman William Griffin on Aug. 5, following his visit to the annual picnic of city officials at the Mautz cottage, Lake Mendota, was due to his imbibing of contents of an innocent looking bowl of fruit punch, was the findings of the police and fire commission at a special meeting last night when they reinstated Griffin after fining him 10 days pay.

Reinstating of Griffin followed an exhaustive investigation of Griffins past life and of circumstances surrounding his intoxication at the municipal picnic made by Commissioner R. N. Quaile. Quaile told the commission that he was convinced that Griffin did not knowingly drink intoxicants and that the officer's past life was above reproach.

Griffin was arrested early in the evening following the annual outing of the city officials by Sheriff Julius Krug who found the officer on the Middleton road, two miles from the Mautz cottage.

The patrolman appeared in person before the commission last night in company with his attorney, Emil Cady, and pleaded guilty.

Official Findings In Case.

The following is the formal statement of the commission drawn up after the hearing:

Patrolman William Griffin having previously indicated by his attorney that he would plead guilty to charges of intoxication on Aug. 5 while on his vacation, the commission has inquired of his superior officers about his previous record, which we find to be good, and having otherwise investigated his past life we fail to find that he has been a "drinking man" and find no instance of previous intoxication.

The commission also finds that conditions under which he partook of the liquor were such as to constitute extenuating circumstances that call for leniency.

The commission also believes that the police department will be better served by Officer Griffin being reinstated in the police service of the city and considering the fact that he pleaded guilty on this twentieth day of August at a special meeting, the commission directs that Patrolman Griffin be continued in service, but that 10 days' pay be withheld from his salary.

Joint Parley Breaks On Shoals of Wage Question; Walkout Near

(By the Associated Press)

WASHINGTON—There was every indication today that in view of the break-up of the Atlantic City anthracite conference the federal government would renew promptly its effort to secure some agreement to avert a suspension of production on Sept. 1.

(By the Associated Press)

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J.—The parley between anthracite operators and miners over a new wage contract designed to prevent a cessation of work in the hard coal fields Sept. 1 broke up today. Adjournment was taken subject to call of the secretary of the joint conference.

John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers of America, declared this afternoon that unless something unforeseen intervened, the miners would consider themselves out of employment on Sept. 1. It seemed generally agreed by representaives of both sides that only government intervention could avert a tie-up of the mines.

Today's break came when the operators definitely refused to grant the wage increase demanded by the miners. Notice of the break was sent to the United States coal commission at Washington. The commission had induced the parties to renew wage negotiations after a series of conferences in New York last week.

During the discussion, S. D. Warriner, as chairman of the operators group told the union contingent that the operators were absolutely unwilling to grant any wage increase. Mr. Lewis promptly said there was no purpose in continuing the negotiations further and moved to adjourn the session.

The operators asked for a withdrawal of the adjournment motion, andthen finally placed before the joint conference a proposal to continue the existing wage rate in a new contract to run for two years beginning at the expiration of the present contract on Sept. 1. This the miners' representatives voted down. The conference dissolved immediately thereaftr. Mr. Lewis and Mr. Warriner said they would later prepare a full statement for publication, giving their views of the break-up.

James A. Gorman, secretary of the joint conference, immediately after adjournment of the meeting telegraphed a report to the United States Coal commission at Washington.

DETROIT, Mich.—Search for six of the seven bandits who early Sunday morning held up patrons of the Allendale Inn here and in making their escape shot and killed Patrolman Oscar Reinhardt of Monroe, Michigan, today led to a group of small islands in Lake Erie off the mainland near Monroe. A posse of more than 200 men today had formed a ring around the islands near Monroe after bloodhounds had lost the trail at the water's edge.

The resolution on dress is much more moderate in tone the declaration of the state society which mentioned hiking costumes and bathing suits.

Employes "Afraid" of Arnold

Tenney Says Officers Didn't Dare Vote Head Out of Presidency

(By the Associated Press)

SUPERIOR, Wis.—Dist. Atty. William H. Dougherty was admonished by Judge C. Z. Luse in federal district court here today for his manner of examining William D. Tenney, former treasurer and secretary of the Madison Bond Co., which Victor Arnold, as former president, is charged with using in the three alleged schemes to defraud by mail.

Defense attorneys had objected to Mr. Dougherty's leading questions constantly throughout the trial of the case, and finally Hal S. Corbett, chief defense attorney asked the court to admonish the district attorney which was done. Bickering and side arguments between various defense attorneys and Mr. Dougherty have been frequent throughout the trial.

Was In Absolute Power

Tenney testified in cross examination that Arnold was in absolute control of the business of the Madison Bond Co., even after Jan. 1, 1921, when Arnold had but $2,500 worth of stock in the $600,000 corporation.

"We didn't dare have any ideas around that office, Mr. Arnold had all the ideas," he said. Asked why he and other stockholder-officials did not vote Arnold out of office as president by Mr. Corbett he retorted:

"We didn't dare to vote him out of office. We would lose our job."

"If he was out of control, how could you lose your jobs?" Corbett asked.

"You never worked in that office," was the reply.

Re-direct examination of Tenney was completed this morning and final cross examination begun when noon recess was taken.

Explains Sale of Stock

Much of Tenney's time under cross-examination was spent in explaining the account on the books of the Madison Bond Co. of stock sold in the sale of employes stock, in November, 1920. He said the receipts were credited to Vice President B. E. Buckman, for convenience since the receipts were to be divided pro-rata according to shares owned and this enabled him to do so at one calculation instead of hundreds. He had previously testified that Tenney, Buckman and three other employes held varying amounts of stock which were being sold to increase the working capital of the Madison Bond Co. He denied that Buckman at any time received a dollar from this account.

Rumor that Buckman had taken a salesman's commissions had been checked by him, Tenney said, and he was satisfied it was false. He denied hearing any "common talk" to the effect.

Hint At Stock Watering

The defense today was trying to show that when Arnold exchanged $25,000 of old common stock—all of it there was—for $350,000 new common stock and put $150,000 of the new issue in the treasury was really obtaining nothing more than ownership of the concern, which he already had, and was donating to the treasury $150,000 of his own holdings. The idea appeared to be that no matter how many certificates were issued the actual value behind the company remained unchanged. The prosecution, in re-direct testimony, secured a statement from Tenney to the effect that this watering of the stock resulted in larger payments of interest.

Dr. Taylor To Resign Pulpit; To Leave City

First Methodist Church Pastor Will Go; No Successor

The Rev. O. W. Taylor, pastor of the First Methodist church here, has tendered his resignation and will leave Madison sometime before the latter part of October, it was learned today. Dr. Taylor said today that he was not ready to announce his plans for the future and the church officials report that no successor has yet been selected.

Dr. Taylor came to Madison two years ago after a series of successful pastorates in some of the largest Methodist churches of Minnesota, South Dakota and Illinois. He had just rounded out a five year pastorate in Kenosha before coming here, and in that period the church membership was increased from 650 to 1,300.

Early last spring, Dr. Taylor announced his intentions of resigning this fall, it was learned today. His pastorate in Madison has been successful, nearly 300 members having been added.

Before coming here he spent 17 years in three churches, the First Methodist church of Rochester, Minn.; the First church of Aberdeen, S. D., and then the Park Avenue church, Kenosha. Prior to the churches named he was pastor of the Trinity church at St. Paul. Dr. and Mrs. Taylor have made many friends here to whom their departure will be a great disappointment.

Opinion Will Open Doors to Crime in State

Senator Severson Says That Hoppmann Ruling Will Help Violators

(Special to The Capital Times.)

IOLA, Wis.—"I do not believe that the Wisconsin supreme court will sustain the position that has been taken by Judge Hoppmann in ruling against the issuance of search warrants on information and belief."

This was the statement made here today by Senator H. J. Severson, author of the Severson law.

"When the Severson law was passed it certainly was the intent that search warrants could be issued on information and belief in the same manner that search warrants are issued for other crimes. The attorneys for moonshiners are trying to make people believe that search warrants have come since the Severson law was passed. For half a century search warrants have been issued for the recovery of stolen property, for ferreting out counterfeit money and for other crimes. These warrants have always been issued on information and belief.

"If the Hoppmann decision is sustained by the supreme court it will certainly be a big victory for the violators of the law. My impression is that the supreme court has already ruled contrary to Judge Hoppmann.

"It is quite evident that the lawyers for the moonshiners are doing everything they can to circumvent the law. The legislature voted against the principle that has been held by Judge Hoppmann. If his view is entertained it will certainly open the doors to crime in Wisconsin."

Unearth Tomb 4,000 Years Old at Prague

PRAGUE—While digging a canal in the Ore Mountains recently, workmen unearthed tombs which archaeologists declare are over 4,000 years old.

The skeletons lying on the ground in a crouching attitude, are well preserved, and conspicuously large. The forehead is receding, the frontal sinus strongly developed, the upper jaw protruding and the chin small. The teeth are much worn but otherwise sound.

Woman of 95 Dead; Son Is Ill

Mrs. Esther Thompson and Son, Thomas, 40, Found In Room

Blood tests were to be made this afternoon at the request of Coroner Joseph Stephenson in hopes of determining the cause of death of Mrs. Esther C. Thompson, 95, and the serious condition of her son, Thomas M. Thompson, 40, who were found prostrated in their beds at their home, 1007 East Mifflin st. this morning.

Some light on the tragedy may be shed if the man recovers from the stupor in which he now lies at the Madison General hospital. Physicians declared today that if he continues to gain he may regain consciousness by night. If he does not recover an autopsy will undoubtedly be ordered by Coroner Stephenson.

The aged woman's dead body and the unconscious form of the son were found in their beds at 8 o'clock this morning by Mrs. M. Bass, housekeeper who was employed only yesterday by the son to care for his mother.

Entering the room to waken the mother for breakfast she discovered that the son was also still in bed. He was supposed to have gone to his work at the H. F. Sharratt furniture warehouse at 7 o'clock. Unable to waken the man by calling him, Mrs. Bass shook him. She then discovered that the man was ill.

Food Poisoned, Is Theory

Investigation is being made today to determine whether or not the pair were victims of a poison taken in their food last night. Both ate hearty suppers, according to Mrs. Bass.

A quart bottle of milk that was in the kitchen when Mrs. Bass retired at 10 o'clock, was found empty this morning. The mother had retired before Mrs. Bass went to bed. The son alone was still up. It is believed that he drank the milk. The milk may have contained something that poisoned him, the coroner said.

It is also possible that the aged woman died a natural death. It is certain that she had been dead for considerable time before she was found. This fact is attested by the condition of her body. Had it not been that the son was found in bed in an unconscious condition investigation might never have been started. Considering the age of the woman, natural death might be expected at any time.

Relatives Are Sought

In the meantime authorities are trying to locate relatives of the man and his mother. It is known [illegible] a daughter of the dead woman [illegible] in Milwaukee. Her name has [illegible] been learned. The body has [illegible] taken to the A. A. Frautschi undertaking parlors.

Frightened, the housekeeper attempted to rouse the aged mother. She discovered that the mother was dead. Dr. H. E. Purcell was summoned.

Coroner Joseph Stephenson who was likewise called to the little home immediately called the police ambulance. Application of the police lungmotor by Drivers William Hogan and Michael Lochner revived the man's breathing. He was taken to the General hospital. He was still unconscious late this afternoon.

It was at first believed that the mother and son were victims of an open gas jet in a gas range just a few feet from their open bedroom. This theory is not given much credence by Coroner Stephenson. No jets were found open. Mrs. Bass who sleeps in a bedroom that also adjoins the kitchen had not detected odors of gas during the night or in the morning when she awakened. A window was partially open in the bedroom occupied by the aged woman and her son, allowing circulation of air.

Mench was to be arraigned in superior court this afternoon. According to Miss Gorman, clerk employed by the F. F. F. laundry, Mench was a roomer at the same home. She alleges that the night of Dec. 18, he entered her room during her absence and took the ring from a purse. Detective Jesse Smith brought Mench back from Galveston.

WASHINGTON—President Coolidge told White House visitors today that he had decided to adopt a "reasonable" attitude in the matter of clemency for war law violators, but that he recognized that some of those still imprisoned were only receiving just punishment for the crimes of which they were convicted.

Morans had been confined in the tuberculosis ward of the prison hospital. He was taken to a local hospital. He was serving two years for stealing an automobile.

Tells Coolidge To Keep Private Rail Control; For Ship Subsidy

WASHINGTON, D. C.—The attitude of American business on important economic questions facing the country with recommendations for their solution was put before President Coolidge yesterday by a delegation representing the United States chamber of commerce.

The committee was headed by Julius H. Barnes, president of the chamber.

The position of American business in the matter of foreign relations, the committee declared, is that existing economic disorder in Europe continues an obstacle to permanent peace, to the elimination of unemployment, and to the restoration of normal living conditions. The committee asserted that the existing European situation is reflected in many domestic problems.

The president was informed that the chamber of commerce favors legislation making possible American representation on the world court.

The chamber holds that the policy of the government on transportation should be based on private ownership and operation with a mutual recognition of obligations to the public and the roads.

The chamber voiced its opposition to government participation in steamship operation and declared its support of a subsidy to maintain an adequate merchant marine.

As to reform of tax laws the chamber's position is:

Repeal of remaining war excise taxes with any needed revenues obtained from a sales tax.

Readjustment of income surtaxes to make them more fruitful in revenue by bringing back into productive and tax yielding enterprises capital now diverted into tax free investments.

Future issues of federal obligations should have their interest subject to federal tax.

Prompt and conclusive settlement of tax liability should be assured to all persons who act in good faith.

Administration of federal income taxes should be so decentralized that a taxpayer may have opportunity for prompt initial decision of questions between him and the government without necessity and expense of a trip to Washington.

Court of tax appeals, independent of the treasury, should be set up.

The chamber declared its support of the immigration restriction policy. It suggested that to the 3 per cent quota there be added an additional 2 per cent quota to be based solely on the selective principle.

Opposition to the proposed bonus law was again emphasized. The flexible tariff principle was indorsed and it was suggested that a separate tariff adjustment board be created.

Speed Cops in Towns Often Unfair, Belief

Unaware of 20-Mile Statute, Says Bitterman In Review

By J. C. BITTERMAN.
(Director Road and Travel Bureau, Madison Association of Commerce.)

A great many tourists, as well as local autoists, feel that an undue advantage is being taken of them regarding the enforcement of Wisconsin's speed limit laws, especially that part of the law pertaining to cities and incorporated villages. Apparently very few town chairmen understand that there are two speed limits which apply to cities, towns, and villages. Section 1636-49 reads in part as follows: "No person shall operate or drive any automobile, motorcycle or other motor vehicle, along any public highway, within the corporate limits of any city or village, or through any unincorporated settlement containing more than 10 houses or places of business, at a speed exceeding 15 miles per hour, except where the houses or business places, or both, shall average more than 200 feet apart, where a safe speed not exceeding 20 miles an hour may be used." Evidently most small town authorities are not aware of the 20-mile clause, many towns having village limit signs, Speed limit—15 miles per hour." Many times these signs are from a quarter mile to one mile from that part of town where houses or business places, or both, are less than 200 feet apart. Speed cops are taking advantage of this situation and are making arrests where travelers are charged with going more than 15 miles per hour, when in fact, the law permits 20 miles.

Another practice that gives the speed cops an undue advantage is the fact that not many of these towns have signs advising the autoist when he leaves the city or village limits. The autoist has no way of knowing when he crosses the dead-line between the 15-mile or 20-mile limit and the 30-mile limit.

Another condition which is confusing to the average driver is the fact that the speed limit signs placed by villagers are frequently much farther out than the signs placed by the Wisconsin highway commission, telling the public into what town they are coming and giving the population and other interesting facts. Many tourists naturally assume that these signs are the city limit signs, and this fact often operates to give the speed cop an undue advantage. This is especially true in cases where the driver is leaving a town or village.

It seems that much of the effort expended by towns and villages to make tourists welcome is lost, when such conditions prevail in many of the smaller towns in the state of Wisconsin. No doubt the proper legal machinery for remedying this evil is located in the capitol of Wisconsin, and there is also no doubt that a great deal of the misunderstanding about speed limits seems to be due to the fact that the average village president, or town chairman as he is sometimes called, is not aware of that part of the law allowing 20 miles, under certain conditions inside corporate villages and cities.

It has been noted by those who have been watching this matter closely that, generally speaking, the victims of this condition have been car owners not familiar with local conditions, which does not give Wisconsin the proper kind of advertising and the kind of advertising which she is entitled to as a tourist state. It is believed that this evil could be easily remedied with the co-operation of the Association of Commerce, the Auto Dealers association and the many "live" clubs in Madison, and that this matter needs only to be brought to the proper authorities in the capitol to be satisfactorily adjusted.

Farm Crisis Up to Farmer Himself, Plea

N. D. Bishop Addresses Catholic Convention In Milwaukee

(By the Associated Press)

MILWAUKEE, Wis.—That the farm problem will have to be solved by the farmers themselves, was the feature of an address on the farm situation delivered by the Rt. Rev. Vincent Wehrle, Bishop of Bismarck, N. D., at the meeting of the German Catholic Central society last night. Giving examples from his experience as a priest in North Dakota for more than 35 years, Bishop Wehrle scored speculation in the wheat market.

Indirectly refuting the statements of non-partisan leaders that the state should operate all public utilities, including grain elevators and mills, Bishop Wehrle said that it is not the function of the state to control industry.

"The farmers themselves must learn to plant less grain and to rely more upon mixed farming," he continued. "If they can form cooperative societies with conscientious leaders they may conscientheir lot. The only danger is that they may get corrupt labor leaders who will make conditions worse instead of better."

Allentown, Pa., was awarded next year's convention.

Judge Studies Here

A MAGISTRATE and a scholar, and a good judge of human nature—that's Judge J. E. Reynolds of the third United States district court of Louisiana, who is spending his vacation attending the University of Wisconsin law school. Despite his mature years and professional standing, he mixes with the law school "youngsters" in typical boyhood fashion and says he gets a "kick" out of it.

He takes his place in the class room and professes that he's there to learn. He won't admit that he is versed in Blackstone, though in his home state he has the reputation of having one of the keenest minds known to American jurisprudence.

He likes sports and proved his ability as a fisherman last week when he caught 75 members of the finny tribe in Lake Monona, and then gave a dinner Saturday night at the University club where he is staying. The dinner was attended by Profs. Page, Carey and Perkins, of Iowa, and about 15 other persons, including Miss Elizabeth Brandeis, daughter of Supreme Court Justice Brandeis, who is also attending the summer session.

Judge Reynolds visited Madison last summer with his daughter, and was so impressed with the beauty of the city and its lakes that he decided to return this year.

He has held court for a number of years and has disposed of numerous cases. He likes to give his decisions immediately after the evidence has been submitted, "while it is still hot."

In commenting on this trait of Judge Reynolds the Shreveport Times, of Shreveport, Ia., says:

"Judge Reynolds was put to the supreme test in 1921 and met the issue squarely. The suit involved the Homer oil fields and millions of dollars and handled by the best and most talented lawyers in the South. A hundred witnesses were examined, 35 separate suits included, and this learned man disposed of them all inside of 30 days.

"In summing up the case Judge Reynolds reviewed in detail the testimony of almost a hundred witnesses and astonished the legal talent by rendering without a note before him an oral opinion which has been termed by leading lawyers as one of the most remarkable ever delivered in a Louisiana court."

Judge Reynolds is also interested in juvenile delinquency. Many of his hours off the bench are devoted to the study of the establishment of a selfsupporting county juvenile home for delinquent boys and girls.

Judge Reynolds has visited Judge E. Ray Stevens and other members of the bar here and in Milwaukee.

Community Union Is Not a Financial Trust; Must Hold Public Esteem, Is Statement

How the rights of all agencies and individuals concerned are protected fully by the Community union plan is made plain in an authorized statement setting forth the organization's real functions in community affairs. The fears of those unfamiliar with the working of Community unions that the union may become a sort of a financial trust, taking on the role of a dictator in social service programs, are without basis in the light of actual results. The elements which go to make up the Community union in themselves tend to make this very difficult.

In proof, on the one hand there are the fourteen agencies in the Madison Community union, voluntarily a part of the organization, possessing the right at any time to withdraw and run their own work entirely independent of other groups. It is readily seen, if a Community union is to maintain itself, how it must deal equitably and fairly with each of the other agencies.

On the other hand, the statement continues, the union has the great supporting public on constant watch its work is constantly in the public eye.

"The union must guard and hold intact and safe the interest of its agencies in the public esteem," this survey of the union plan goes on. "It is, therefore, ten times as sensitive to public opinion as any of its agencies. All elements, creeds, ages, groups must be taken care of. In such a position arbitrary methods are of no use. The public has a concrete organization it can hold to account for the entire social service program of the community, and experience in the matter shows that it is not slow to bring such an organization to task for any maladjustment.

"On the other hand, the various agencies look upon the Community union as a democratic form by which all can get hearing on their particular problems. In actual working, the Community union plan permits the social workers to have more to say concerning the whole program in the community. For the first time they participate in the plans which are community wide. And the public, in general, are represented indirectly and directly so as to secure for them more concrete participation and actual influence in the development and carrying out of programs of social service than has yet been obtained under any other plan."

New Explosive

Badger Land Clearing Given Impetus With Use Of Sodatol

ASHLAND—The land clearing movement in the state went into high speed here today with the announcement that millions of pounds of sodatol, the cheapest war salvaged explosive yet offered, are available for blasting stumps and stones.

Officials of the land clearing section of the Wisconsin college of agriculture who for months have been working with representatives of the U. S. bureau of public roads to perfect this new explosive, told a gathering of county agents here today of its existence. Present indications are that 2,000,000 pounds of sodatol will find its way into the hands of Wisconsin farmers before snow flies. This explosive is being used to replace picric acid. It is predicted that farmers of the state will find themselves a quarter of a million dollars richer this fall as a resut of this new discovery.

Officials of the state's experiment station reported that sodatol is a mixture of T. N. T. and sodium nitrate propery dried, ground, mixed and cartridged. It is entirely safe and usable, does not have any poisonous effects, leaves no stain on the hands nor does it produce the headacres which handicap the use of some ordinary explosives. It is not affected by freezing and will give good results at any ordinary temperatures.

The material will be distributed direct to farmers at a cost of about 6 cents a pound. Farmers in communities not having a county agent may obtain this material by corresponding with John Swenehart of the Wisconsin college of agriculture at Madison. According to the estimate made at the conference the use of sodatol will affect an approximate saving of at least 12 cents a pound to northern Wisconsin farmers.

Paris Note Is Handed To London

Reply Today Seeks To Avoid Split; Poincare Stands Firm

(By the Associated Press)

PARIS—The French government's reply to the recent note of Marquis Curzon, the British foreign secretary, on the reparations situation was handed to the British embassy at 9 o'clock today.

The feeling in French official circles is that this note, indited by Premier Poincare, will prevent a rupture of the entente. Considerable confidence is expressed that the British cabinet will find it conciliatory and see in it a basis for continued discussion if the Ruhr occupation and the renaration problem generally.

There is no concealment of the fact that the reply is largely controversial, that Premier Poincare is unyielding on the outstanding features of the situation and that it is not expected Premier Baldwin will find the reply conclusive.

It is considered almost certain, however, that he will regard it as encouraging and will withhold any plans for separate action toward Germany until the points in dispute are further elucidated.

There is said to be a tendency to look more favorably on a new reparation conference among the allies and it is thought to be certain that Premier Poincare will see Prime Minister Baldwin when the latter returns from his vacation stay at Aix Les Bains.

The French reply takes up 50 pages of a yellow book which will be issued tomorrow, together with a summary in both English and French.

Honesty Biggest Asset To Circus, Manager Declares

CHARLES SPARKS

Extreme courage and strategy, coupled with extensive resources and above all a high standard of honesty, are necessary assets of a successful circus proprietor. The fact that less than a score of the owners of large circuses which have toured America during the last century have been successful furnishes ample proof that the business is at least precarious. None but showmen of more than ordinary accomplishments have succeeded in this branch of entertainment. Today there are but three large circuses touring America under the management of the men whose names they bear, and the Sparks circus, which will exhibit in Madison next Monday, is one of the three.

For over 35 years the Sparks circus has been continually before the public, always touring under its own name and being personally managed by its owners. Manager Charles Sparks, under whose guidance the big organization has grown by rapid strides, and several members of the Sparks family travel with the circus constantly.

Patrolman Is Fined 10 Days Pay By Board

Harry Davenport, all superior officers of Griffin, told Commissioner Qualie that Griffin's record while in the police service has been a credit to the man.

Expresses His Regret.

Griffin expressed his regret of the case and told the commission that he had not knowingly broken the rules of the department.

According to his story he went to the municipal picnic that Sunday afternoon in company with a city alderman. He was invited to partake of the contents of a big punch bowl. Griffin declares that he did so, but without knowledge that the contents were intoxicating.

It was early in the evening of the same day that he was arrested on the Middleton road.

Scores City Officials.

Commissioner Edward H. Drews, president of the commission, scored the city officials for giving a police officer intoxicating liquors.

"I have a great many friends among the city aldermen and city hall officials, but I must say that they committed a very grave offense when they allowed a police officer to be unwittingly disgraced through intoxicating punch served at their picnic," Dr. Drews said.

"We are trying to wipe liquor out of the department. We do not want drinking men walking beats in this city. It is the moral obligation of every public official to help us."

Mrs. Edna Cheynoweth, the only woman on the commission, declared that she believed Griffin to be innocent of intentional wrongdoing.

Business matters kept Commissioners George Sayle and Frank Jenks from attending the meeting. It was understood that both of these men were willing that Griffin should be freed with a fine.

Is Appointed Policeman

Lyman Mason, who a year ago passed one of the best physical examinations of any applicant for the police department, was appointed a patrolman last night by the police commission. Chief of Police Thomas Shaughnessy recommended the apointment.

Mrs. Cheynoweth was asked to consult with Chief Shaughnessy regarding the appointment of another temporary police matron to take the place of Mrs. Fannie Hamilton while that woman takes her vacation.

Intimations that Mrs. Mary Griffiths, police matron who has been confined to her bed for the past several weeks following an attack of heart trouble, will resign, was made at the commission meeting last night.

Crazed Policeman Runs Amuck; Is Killed While Trying to Slay Judge

Keeps Hammond, Ind., In State Of Terror For Four Hours

CHICAGO—A crazed former policeman armed with a revolver and a shotgun held up the entire police force of West Hammond, Ind., last night, attempted to assassinate a city judge and finally was killed in a running battle on the principal residence street.

For four hours the maniac kept the entire town in a state of terror. Men, women and children barricaded their homes while he drove about the streets, a double-barreled shotgun across his knees seeking the mayor, city clerk and other officials with the avowed intention of killing them, then taking his own life.

He pursued Police Magistrate John Kowalski out of town in an auto chase, firing at the magistrate only to be out-distanced by the latter's speedy machine.

The maniac was John Kosmalo, 45, who had been discharged from the police force last July following trouble over the holdup of a beer truck and a raid on a "moonshine" still.

Ex-Convict Is Appointed By Wood, Charge

Filipino Makes Startling Statement On Mayor Of Manila

(By the Associated Press)

MANILA—Political circles were jarred by a bomb shell this afternoon when Manuel Quezon, who recently resigned as president of the Philippine senate, because of his differences with the American executive administration, announced he had called the secretary of war that Mayor Rodriguez of Manila, lately appointed to that post by Gov. Gen. Wood, was an ex-convict from Bilibid prison.

The Herald issued an extra edition, demanding that the governor general request Mayor Rodriguez's resignation.

Quezon charged that Mayor Rodriguez served one year for procuring the abduction of a woman by a band of bandits. Rodriguez was also convicted, according to Quezon's cable, of being an accomplice to the murder of J. P. Berry of the 27th U. S. Infantry.

Baby Kidnaped; Empty Buggy Fails As Lure

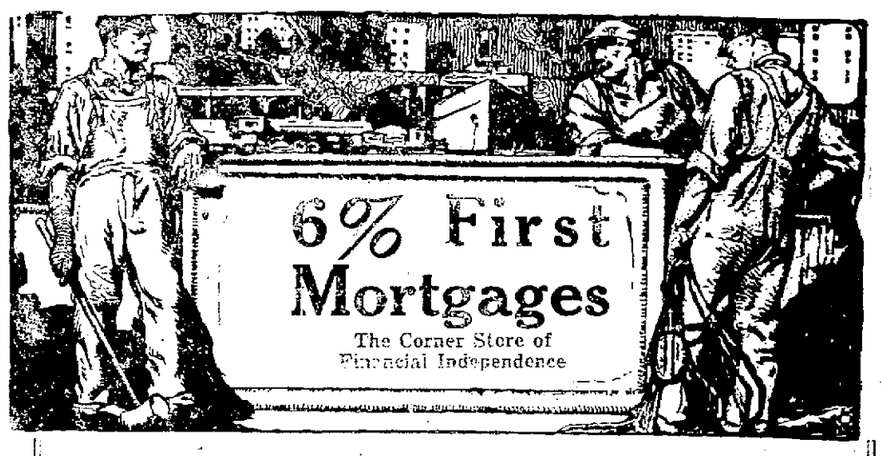

NEW YORK—An empty baby carriage stood all day today again at the spot in W. Eighteenth st. where 3-months-old Lillian McKenzie was kidnapped Saturday. It was placed there by Peter McKenzie in hope that the kidnaper would relent and return to it its precious burden. Tonight McKenzie trundled it slowly home, still empty, to his wife. She recalled hopefully that an uncle kidnapped from almost the same spot years ago had been safely returned. But Lillian still is missing and the hundred detectives who devoted the entire day to a feverish search for her have begun to fear that she is dead. She was a delicate infant, in whom the spark of life has been kept only by careful administration of a complicated food formula.

First Mortgage Investments for the Man Who Labors

The general opinion among men of moderate means is that good 6% First Mortgage investments are only for the man who has large capital to invest.

Such a conception is wrong.

The Joseph M. Boyd Company would rather sell First Mortgage investments to the man of moderate means than to any other. To do this a partial payment plan has been devised. Amounts, even as low as $10 a month are acceptable and applied to the purchase of the principal sum. When the entire amount of the bond or mortgage is paid for, it is then delivered to purchaser.

This plan permits anyone who can save $10.00 a month to participate in the safest of investments.

WHOLE VILLAGE BUILT FOR OLD PLAY

A village of forty or more houses, with an old homestead and its outbuildings on the outskirts, was built for "The Old Homestead" a Paramount picture which opens a return engagement at the Madison tomorrow. The old homestead was a practical structure with roof and rooms and between scenes the company assembled in the 'living room' and amused themselves with games, reading and music. At the finale of the story a terrific storm destroys the village, but leaves the old homestead intact. Theodore Roberts, George Fawcett, Harrison Ford and Fritzi Ridgeway will be seen in the leading roles in this screen version of the old favorite stage play in which Denman Thompson starred for more than thirty years. Seize Indian Woman's Vote; She Can Sue, Rule

John M. Kelley, district attorney of Oneida county, was advised today that Helen Ackley, an Indian woman, whose vote was destroyed at the Town of Sugar Camp election, April 3, 1923, may prosecute the person who destroyed her ballot, on a charge of simple assault.

The ruling came as the result of the Indian woman's question on legality of her vote.

She had voted at previous elections and never had been challenged. At the April election she had procured her ballot, and was standing in line, when Sidney Schmidt, took the ballot and destroyed it.

Schmidt was not one of the election inspectors. The attorney general's office finds that "no person, except the inspector of elections shall receive from any voter a ballot which has been prepared for voting."

Legislature Praised At Retailers' Convention

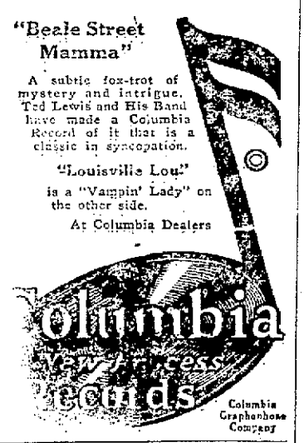

GREEN BAY, Wis.—"Not one bill injurious to the retailer or to his customer was passed during the last session of the legislature," Charles H. Goodman, president of the Wisconsin Retailers' association told delegates assembled at the opening session of that association here yesterday.

Comings For Referendum On Wet Issue

Lieutenant Governor Says He Favors Vote on The Liquor Question

Lieut. Gov. George F. Comings, who is a candidate for governor said today that he is in favor of a referendum on the wet and dry issue.

He has received a letter from the Wisconsin Anti-Saloon League, signed by D. L. Mc Bride, the state superintendent, and B. N. Hicks, legislative counsel, which says:

"This letter expresses our appreciation of your influence and absolutely fair rulings from the chair on the questions relating to the dry cause."

Commenting on this letter, Mr. Comings said:

"My desire to be an absolutely fair presiding officer kept me from interesting myself in pending legislation to any great extent.

"But I did favor with Mr. Hicks and Senator Severson the introduction in the assembly of a bill providing for a referendum on the wet issue.

"I was also instrumental in getting Senator Gashman to introduce a resolution for an interim committee to investigate our asylums for the unfortunate. I believe through investigation many causes for socia ills can be found, and when known removed. It seems to me to remove the causes of social ills is far better than to endure them, or to attempt to take care of the victims produced by these ills.

"I also did all that I could to get Senator Johnson's bill through, making an exemption from taxation for a certain amount of homestead improvement, and I had the pleasure of breaking a tie vote in its favor in the senate.

"The wet and dry referendum bill was defeated in the assembly by the wets. Senator Cashman's resolution was vetoed, and only the Johnson bill, a real constructive piece of legislation won out."

Originality Keynote of These Frocks

ORIGINALITY is the keynote of the three frocks pictured here. While the popularity of embroidery and ribbon as trimming is again demonstrated, the way they are used is unusual.

On the left is an organdy creation in the rather peculiar color combination of green and yellow. Yellow organdy is the material used while the embroidery and ribbon trim is in jade green. The effect of the use of the ribbon is to give a butterfly-look to the frock. The outstanding ruffles on the very short sleeves, the bow at the collar and the decidedly butterfly one at the very center of the belt, give an airy look to the frock. The tight-fitting blouse and rather bouffant fullness of the skirt have a quaint appearance.

A chiffon dance frock at the right is still more unique. The bouffant effect is again in evidence with the tight fitting bodice. Heavy embroidery down the front of the skirt is a very striking feature while the huge bow of two-toned ribbon at the left side with ends touching the floor and the boat-shaped collar standing about the neck, also of ribbon, in imitation of the bandanna so popular through the winter and spring, are touches as attractive as unusual. Does the dressing of the hair as seen in the illustration presage the passing of the bob?

In striking contrast to the other two gowns is the extreme simplicity of the coat frock in the center. A straight, one-piece frock of navy blue twill is trimmed with Roumanian embroidery. It is girdled with a heavy silk cord ending in tassels and the high turnover collar and coatlike sleeves with the gauntlet cuffs are in keeping with the lines of this very smart and practical walking frock.

Supreme Court Power Upheld At Conference

Uniform Law Chief Flays Limitation on High Bench

(By the Associated Press)

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn.—If present agitation to amend the constitution of the United States to deprive or limit the power of the supreme court to declare legislation unconstitutional is successful "the very foundation of the republic" would be undermined, declared Nathan W. Mac Chesney, Chicago, president of the National Conference of Uniform Laws, in an address today to the opening session of the organization's meeting. The conference which began a six day session this morning, is a fore-runner of the annual gathering of the American Bar Association which begins August 28.

Uniform state laws for settlement of industrial disputes; uniform arbitration blue sky law and real and chattel public property acts and the federal primary laws will be some of the matters to come before the conference for commendation to the bar association.

In his annual address Mr. Mac Chesney said:

"There is constant complaint about the loading up of our federal government with activities that properly belongs with the states and a continued centralization which spells bureaucracy. Most thoughtful men recognize that the continued creation of huge administrative machinery at Washington to administer activities which can really be done effectively only by local governments, is wrong in principle, but few are devoting themselves to a constructive effort to obviate the necessity for centralization.

"The people demand efficiency, and if the movement is to be changed an effective substitute must be found for unification through the enactment of federal laws. Such a substitute is at hand in many fields in the enactment of uniform state statutes."

CHILD'S STORY OF THE HUMAN RACE

By RAMON COFFMAN "Uncle Ray"

CHAPTER 108—The New Cup-Bearer.

You remember that the gods and goddesses of Mount Olympus often sipped of the delicious drink called NECTAR. Their enjoyment was made even greater by the fact that the nectar was passed around by Hebe, goddess of youth.

Hebe was all that could be wished for in the way of freshness and beauty. The heavenly rulers smiled upon her as she came with pitcher and goblet and poured out the drink of drinks. She returned their smiles, her face beaming joyously.

Then, one day, nectar was no longer served by the lovely Hebe. Stories disagree as to the reason. One account says she was dismissed as the result of a fall while serving the gods. A story I like better is that she gave up the work because of her marriage to Heracles or Hercules.

Who was to take her place on Mount Olympus?

It was a hard question.

Zeus decided to try to find a successor. Taking the form of an eagle he flew near the surface of the earth. Near the city of Troy, in Asia Minor, he caught sight of a handsome boy on a hillside.

Ganymede, the cup-bearer, gives drink to the eagle of Zeus.

Copyright the John F. Dille Co., Chicago.

"Ah!" he exclaimed, "that lad would make a splendid cup-bearer."

Down he swept, caught the youth in his talons, and carried him to Mount Olympus.

The name of the new cup-bearer was Ganymede. He became a favorite with both god and goddesses. This picture shows him giving drink to an eagle. This eagle is not Zeus in disguise, but the bird which sometimes carried thunder bolts for Zeus.

Uncle Wiggily's Bedtime Stories

By HOWARD GARIS

UNCLE WIGGILY AND THE FUNNY BRELLA.

(Copyright, 1923, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

One day, as Uncle Wiggily hopped out of his hollow stump bungalow, Nurse Jane Fuzzy Wuzzy called after him:

"Where are you going?"

"To pay a little visit to Mr. Twisty-tail, the gentleman pig," answered the bunny rabbit. "He cut his nose on an old tin can and I want to cheer him up."

"That is very kind of you," said the muskrat lady housekeeper. "But you had better take your rubber coat and your rubber boots."

"Why?" asked Uncle Wiggily.

"Because it looks like rain," answered Nurse Jane.

The rabbit gentleman glanced up at the sky and said:

"Oh, I think I can go to Mr. Twistytail's and get back before the storm. Have you anything good I could take the gentleman pig, Nurse Jane?"

"I have some turnip shortcake," she answered, and she gave Uncle Wiggily a large slice for Mr. Twistytail.

Over the fields and through the woods hopped Uncle Wiggily carrying the piece of turnip shortcake to Mr. Twistytail. The gentleman pig was glad to see his rabbit friend.

"How is your sore nose that you cut on a tin can?" asked Mr. Long-ears.

"Much better, thank you," grunted the pig, and then he did not talk for a while as he was busy eating Nurse Jane's cake.

All of a sudden there was a rumble and a roar, sounding so loud that Uncle Wiggily almost fell off his toadstool chair.

"Was that an auto going over a bridge?" asked the bunny.

"I think it was thunder," answered Mr. Twistytail. "We are going to have some rain."

"That's what Nurse Jane said," spoke Uncle Wiggily. "And as I didn't bring my rubber boots and coat, to say nothing of an umbrella, I had better be hopping back."

"Oh, please stay a little while longer," begged Mr. Twistytail, for he was lonesome. "If it rains I'll lend you an umbrella."

So uncle Wiggily stayed visiting a little longer. But the thunder became louder, rumbling and grumbling.

"I had better hop along now," said the rabbit gentleman after a while, looking around as the lightning flashed. "If I hurry I may get to my bungalow before the storm comes."

"Well, take this, anyhow," said Mr. Twistytail, and he reached in a corner and handed something to the rabbit.

"What's this— an umbrella?" asked the bunny.

"Sort of, though I call it a funnybrella," laughed the pig gentleman.

"Funngbrella? What do you mean?" asked Uncle Wiggily.

"You'll see when you open it,' chuckled Mr. Twistytail. "But if it doesn't rain you won't have to open it. Hop along and good luck to you, Uncle Wiggily."

"Thank you! I wish you the same," said the bunny, and away he hopped over the fields and through the woods. All the while the lightning was flashing and the thunder rumbling, though, as yet, it had not rained.

Uncle Wiggily was half way to his hollow stump bungalow when, all of a sudden, out from behind a big rock stepped the Woozie Wolf.

"Oh!" exclaimed the bunny.

"Oh!" laughed the Wolf. "I think I'll walk with you, Uncle Wiggily. "I see you have an umbrella, and it will keep me dry."

The bunny rabbit didn't know what to say as the Wolf walked along with him. Then, all of a sudden it began to rain.

"Hoist the umbrella and keep me dry!" growled the Wolf.

The bunny rabbit raised the umbrella and, as he did so, he saw that one-half the cloth was gone from the ribs. It was really only half an umbrella.

"No wonder Mr. Twistytail called it a funnybrella," thought the bunny. "Perhaps he knew I would meet the Wolf and could play a trick on him with the funnybrella. I'll do it!"

Uncle Wiggily held the good part of the umblerra over himself, and the part wit hthe hole in over the Wolf. And of course the rain came down on the Wolf, wetting him through and through.

"Hey! Something is the matter!" howled the Wolf, never looking up, however. "The rain is coming through your umbrella. This is no place for me. I'll stand under a tree until the rain stops. I never saw such an umbrella!"

"Tisn't an umbrella—it's a FUNNYBRELLA!" laughed the rabbit. "And I'm glad it is!" Then he hopped safely home, leaving the Wolf under the tree, and the rabbit under the good half of the umbrella, didn't get wet at all.

So this teaches us that half a loaf of bread is better than no pie at all. And if the fire engine doesn't get its wheels wet when it squirts water on the flower bed, I'll tell you next about Uncle Wiggily and the feather game.

TODAY'S RECIPES

Steamed Barley—Steam two cups whole barley in a double boiler for one hour. Ten minutes before removing from fire add large yellow raisins. Serve hot with cream.

Jellied Veal—One knuckle of veal, two pounds of finely chopped veal (the neck or forequarter veal is very good) with one-half pound of salt pork. Add four common crackers (one-half cup), rolled fine, one teaspoon of black pepper with one-half teaspoon of nutmeg and two teaspoons of salt. Add three beaten eggs and make into a loaf. Bake one hour and a half or two hours in a slow oven. Baste with butter. Put on the outside of the loaf a small quantity of the rolled cracker. This loaf may be made with only one egg, using one-fourth cup of milk.

Prune and Rice Pudding—One tablespoon of milk, one-third cup sugar, one-eighth teaspoon nutmeg or cinnamon and one teaspoon salt. Wash the rice, add the other ingredients, pour the mixture into a good-sized baking dish and cook in the oven slowly for about two or three hours, stirring it frequently. If allowed to cook slowly the milk thickens to a creamy consistency and the rice swells to several times its original size. Often half a cup of soaked, chopped, pitted prunes is added to the pudding and allowed to cook with the milk.

Fried Fish—Any small fish are nice to fry. Wash and dry, dip in flour or cornmeal, salt and pepper, fry in a good quantity of bacon fat or lard.

Creamed Potatoes With Onion—Cream the potatoes as usual and just before serving stir in a small, minced raw onion.

SUGGESTIONS

For Gifts or Home—Some of the shops show a great variety of lemonade spoons of glass. Many of them have hollow handles, so that they serve the purposes of the humbler straw of soda-fountain fame. Many of them have bowls of brilliant glass — fiery red, jade green, orange, bright blue or purple. Either in sets all in one color or in sets containing all the colors, these spoons are an attractive addition to the summer refreshment tray. Some of these spoons have little glass-blown bulbs at the top end of their handles in the shape of tiny fruits, oranges or plums, apples or pears. They are in the natural colors of the fruits.

Garden Baskets—These are by no means exclusive with the "fancy" gardener. A basket is the ideal carrier for small garden tools; a gathering basket, with or without a long spike, is an essential in the well kept flower garden; and the flat reed trays are handy little helpers when planting or transplanting bulbs—save messing with a newspaper—and they are light weight, easily cleaned and attractive at the same time.

Mrs. Thompson's Advice

GIRL IS COURTED BY ELDERLY RICH MAN

But She Loves Young Man; Which Shall She Marry, Is Old, Old Query

DEAR MRS. THOMPSON: I am a girl 18 years old, and have been going with a rich man. But he is much older than I. There also is a young man whom I am in love with. They both have asked me to marry them. Will you please advise me what to do?

ANXIOUS.

Dear Anxious: Marry the younger man if you really love him, and he can support you. The older man probably is no more wealthy than the younger man will be when he reaches that age, but putting the question of money aside, it is better to marry the man you love. Married life brings many trials, as well as happiness, and while money will smooth away many of them, love will make them all much easier to put up with and will smooth away many troubles that money couldn't help. And you will certainly be happier with the companionship of a man near your own age, instead of an older man whose interests will necessarily become widely separated from yours, as you both grow older.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am a young man twenty-one years of age and have been keeping steady company with a girl of twenty. We have gone together for about two years and always got along fine when we were together, but at time she gets angry and quits me without any excuse.

We have "busted up" and gone back three times already. The last time she claimed some one came down to the bank where she works and told her something, but she would not tell me what it was or who told her, but still she wanted to quit me again. The time before this she promised me if I would take her back she would never quit me again, and so I took her back, but I told her that if she ever quit me again I would never take her back. Now after she has heard something, we have quit again.

I have another girl and have been going with her ever since. Today I got a letter from her begging me to take her back. She claims the reason she quit me three times before was to find out whether or not I truly loved her. She promises that if I will take her back this time she will never quit me again. Prior to the time she quit me we were engaged to be married, but suddenly she changed her mind andacted as if she were in love with someone else. Now she claims she was not in love with anybody else and if I take her back she will marry me and will work to help buy us a home.

She has quit so many times before this that I hardly know whether to take her back or not.

DOUBTFUL BILL.

It seems to me the girl has played fast and loose with you long enough. You cannot trust her to be faithful to you, because experience has proved that her promises mean nothing. I do not believe you would be happy together even if you were to marry her now, because she would be just as moody after marriage as she has been before.

My advice is to let the first girl go and continue your friendship with the second. Love will come to you again later on and it is surely to be hoped that your next experience will be a happier one than the past. You have given your whole heart and have received very little in return.

Ecru Lake Yoke For Night Gown

Although pajamas are in great favor with the younger set dainty night gowns are by no means passe. This charming robe is made of soft pink crepe de chine. It is gathered onto a yoke of ecru val lace. A band of the lace also encircles the wide armhole.

The Story of an Artist's Wife

As Told to Grace Phelps

VERA DEEMING AGAIN

Unceremoniously I burst into the room and two startled faces turned toward me. There was nothing suspicious in their attitudes. Vera was sitting cross-legged on the couch and Barclay was lounging at a little card table set beside it, I noticed, with what had evidently been luncheon for two.

Vera's eyebrows lifted and her lip curled sarcastically as she turned back to Barclay. His face hardened.

"Don't stand there staring as if you had seen a ghost!" he said curtly. "Come in! You know Miss Deeming, I think."

I moved toward the table automatically.

"Yes," I said faintly. "I know Miss Deeming." In spite of myself there was a slight inflection on that word "know" and a flush crept over Vera's sallow skin, though her expression did not change.

"You've had your lunch, I suppose?" Barclay said, sliding a chair toward me. "Miss Deeming came in while I was making a pot of tea and very kindly got lunch for me."

His tone, I thought, was slightly defiant.

"How very nice of her!" I murmured.

Vera rose and shook out her skirts, her green eyes smoldering.

"You will excuse me if I leave you to these domestic explanations," she said to Barclay. "I never come between husband and wife!"

Her tone was simply nasty. There is no other word for it, and all the meanness in myself rose up to answer it.

"Not," I said meaningly, "when the wife is present!"

The green eyes flashed, then her heavy lids drooped over them.

"Wives do have a habit of cramping one's style!" she said insolently. Then in her sweetest tone: "Don't you agree with me, Barclay?"

His face had flushed darkly at my retort. He got up and accompanied Vera to the door.

"I do!" he said emphatically.

My heart sank. I might have known from my experience with Lucy that Barclay would always take the side of the feminine visitor against me. As Jack Cornell had observed, it was his idea of hospitality, but it was hard for me to view it in just that light.

When the door had closed behind her, Barclay faced me almost savagely.

"Will you tell me why you think you can come into my studio and insult a guest?" he demanded.

I gasped. His studio?

"In future," he went on, his face still dark with anger, "I'll thank you to use your own door and when you hear voices in here—stay out."

I could feel the blood slowly ebbing from my cheeks as he spoke. Rather dizzily, I got to my feet.

"If that is the way you feel about me, I'll stay out entirely," I said, and turned blindly toward the hall door.

Barclay's temper subsided as quickly as it had risen. With a quick step he was between me and the door and with another had his arms around me.

"Don't," he pleaded, his lips against my cheek. "I was a fool to say that to you. Forgive me, darling. I have a beast of a temper!"

"Let me go!" I panted and wrenched myself free from his arms.

Leslie Mann Playing With Nebraska Team

LINCOLN, Nebraska — Leslie Mann former National League baseball player, has joined the Corning, Iowa, semi-professional team, playing in the outfield for the balance of the season, according to advices received by friends at his home here. When Mann returned to Lincoln recently, after quitting the Cincinnati club, he announced he was through with professional baseball, and it was his intention to resume his contract with Indiana State University as basketball coach.

Hickey Rules Against Brewers On Protest

CHICAGO—Two baseball games which Milwaukee won from the Indianapolis club of the American association while playing Art Bues in the Brewers' lineup on Monday were thrown out by Thomas J. Hickey, president of the league. Mr. Hickey, acting on a protest from the Indianapolis club, found that Bues was an ineligible player.

In 1922, Mr. Hickey said, Bues, who was the property of the Louisville club, had been placed on the voluntary retired list. The Milwaukee club gained permission from the Louisville club to employ Bues and he reported. Investigation by M. Hickey developed that Bues, by playing last year with the Joliet, Ill., club, not in organized baseball, had outlawed himself from organized ball.

The team from the Antipodes earned the right to meet the U. S. team by eliminating the French quartet in the final round. Capt. James O. Anderson of the Anzac team was the star of the matches with the French and is counted to lead the attack of the Australians against the Americans.

Roundy Says:

With This Cool Weather Spell It's About Time to Sling a Little Football Dope

They are sure rushing those new bleachers on Randall field for this fall. You could have 60,000 tickets for sale and the big word at the gym would be "all gone."

* * *

I hope this new stunt they have worked on tickets this year is a success. Nickerson seems to have got the right idea to handle the seats and his work is good. But there are too many wise guys calling up on the phone over his head and they seem to get those ducats somehow.

* * *

Handling a bunch of tickets like that is a tough job. Some are bound to get more than they are allowed. A few of those birds are rather well spotted and if they try their old tricks this year will get the game by telephone from the police station.

* * *

One student last year sold four tickets in one group at the Illinois game here last year for $75. That is the first thing to kill college football is this scalping of tickets.

* * *

Jack Harris, the big halfback left up north and went back home to Racine to his home till the bell rings on Sept. 15.

* * *

Pulaski the end of last year will be back. As to his studies it is a question.

* * *

No person knows if Taft is eligible or not for next fall. He had a con or so this spring. If he went to summer school here or some other school is a question. If he is o. k. it means a lot to Ryan in that kicking department.

* * *

Dr. Meanwell will oversee all the men this year and will have the conditioning of men all under his supervision all alone. That means a big help to Ryan. When it comes to having men in condition Meanwell leads the world. He was supposed to have the same job under Richards. But he and Richards got along like a cat and a bull-dog. If Meanwell is given plenty of rope in handling the men on the squad then there is a big load off Ryan's shoulders.

* * *

Schneider, the Middleton pitcher, pitched for Waunaked against De Forest. He struck out 16 men, allowed only five hits but got beat 6 to 2. The Waunakee third baseman had five errors alone.

* * *

Jim Pratt, the railroad conductor, goes fishing with Dr. Starry. He catches six nice yellow bass while Dr. caught one dog fish and he carries the string himself up the street. Dr. slipped Pratt a dollar for leaving him get away with it.

Don't forget, folks, that the racing at the Dane county fair this Wednesday, Thursday and Friday is going to be the greatest ever held at a fair in this county. And don't forget the fireworks Wednesday and Thursday nights.

They are trying to give you the best money can buy this year, and if you fail to see those nags swing around that track then you are off your feed. Get out there early and get a seat in the grandstand.

Ray Longfield, Corky and Fred Berg had a secret conference over in the stalls. Waat is the idea, gang? Get the inside info off these birds before you place your coin.

Robbins, the starter, is here putting on his cat. This bird is the best ever officiated here. He slips some of those drivers the razzberries that sure is not sweet to take.

* * *

There is one copper in this town who wears his hat cocked on the side of his head. Talk about hard. He sure looks the part. If any bandits blew in town and saw him, they would beat it. If he wears his hat straight they say it gives him a headache.

Officer Mackisey is wearing a flower in the lapel of his coat all the time now. What is the idea, Mack? Soon he will be wearing knickers. It's hard to keep the old bucks down.

* * *

This is a funny week. The Blues don't play Sauk City.

* * *

They put Donaldson on first base just in time to save his trousers from wearing out from sitting on the bench. What could be fairer?

* * *

Squirt Rice must be wearing asbestos on his trousers. Or else there are two pair of trousers with those blue uniforms.

* * *

The Blues will play the Gilkerson Giants here Friday, Saturday and Sunday. The Blues against the Blacks. Write your own ticket.

* * *

There is one thing that I would like to see, and it is the Blues take two out of three from the Giants. The Gilkersons are the greatest colored team that is playing ball today.

* * *

They should have a world series in Boston this fall. Both Boston teams playing each other to see which is the worlds' worst ball club. Fair enough.

* * *

There is a real game of ball this Wednesday. The Nash Motors play the Twin Cities at Sauk. Talk about class.

I asked the boss for a vacation. He said: "You have been on a vacation for ten years." Is that a slam or a boost?

After losing one baseball game to the team representing the Mt. Vernon assembly, Equitable Fraternal Union, by the score of 17 to 14 yesterday afternoon at Mt. Following the ball game, the visitors and members of the Mt. Vernon assembly, with their families, held a picnic supper on the school grounds. The team representing the Madison assembly was composed of H. Falkner, R. Gersbach, Oswald Krueger, A. Felt, Marcus E. Johnson, Irvin Krueger, August Drasb, E. F. and Charles Falkner and Ole Berg. Amateur Golf Meet To Be Held In West?

1924 National Golf Championship May Be 'Neath Western Sun

NEW YORK—It may be that when amateur linksmen gather for the 1924 national championship it will be to play 'neath the rays of a western sun. Although no announcement from United States Golf Association headquarters has been made as yet regarding the venue of next year's tournament it is within the realm of possibility that a course on the Pacific coast will be selected. The constitution of the association provides for a choice to be made a year in advance, but as yet no word has been received from the championship committee.

To illustrate to what lengths sentiment has changed it is only necessary to recall a conversation of a few years ago during which a prominent California golfer dared hint that his state would very much like to have the amateur championship in a year or so.

The suggestion was regarded as a joke by association officials, even though the spokesman from the Golden Gate gave figures and facts which showed a spread and growth of the game along lines difficult to duplicate in any other section of the country. Since then California golf has continued to flourish like the green bay tree. Incidentally, it can no longer be overlooked.

Roger Lapham, who in his boyhood days resided in New York, is now identified with the game near San Francisco and latterly he has been urgent in his plea for recognition. They have everything golf[illegible] could ask for.

Fond du Lac Golfer Is New 'Pro' Champ; Sets Course Record

Neil McIntyre Makes 36 Holes In 151

OSHKOSH, Wis.—Neil McIntyre, professional golfer at the Town and Country club at Fond du Lac, won the state professional championship in the annual tournament of the Wisconsin professional golfers' association at the Oshkosh Country club on Monday when he turned the thirty-six holes in 151 strokes.

McIntyre won the title by virtue of a great uphill fight in the afternoon round of eighteen holes when he established a new record of seventy-one for the local course. The Fond du Lac pro after scoring eighty in the morning round, went out in thirty-four on the first nine in the afternoon, and returned in thirty-seven. Par on the course is seventy-four.

The former course record of seventy-three was established two years ago by Bob Gardner of Chicago.

In his afternoon round, McIntyre played phenomenal golf, making all holes in par or better.

William Robertson, professional at the Ozaukee Country club, finished second in the state title event with a card of 158. Robertson turned in a card of eighty-two for his morning round, but improved his game in the afternoon and scored seventy-six, two strokes above par.

Bim Lovekin of Green Bay, defending champion, finished third with a card of 159. Lovekin shot consistent golf on both rounds, turning the eighteen holes in the morning in seventy-nine, and the eighteen holes in the afternoon in eighty.

Report of the Markets

Report for August 21, 1923

Wheat Trade Light; Prices Remain Same

CHICAGO—Trade in wheat was light at the start today with prices hovering near to yesterday's finish during the early dealings. Liverpool started at an advance but a reaction soon carried values to about the previous close. There was some scattered commission house business on both sides of the market here, but indifferent cables had a tendency to check the demand. Country offerings were light. Cash interests sold September and bought December in a small way. Opening prices, which varied from ⅜c higher to ⅛c lower, with Dec. 1.04@1.04⅛ and May 1.08⅞ to 1.09⅛ were followed by a slight setback all around and then something of a rally.

Strength in corn and a prediction of frost in parts of Canada helped to uphold wheat values in the late trading. The close was unchanged to ⅜c higher, with December 1.04½ to 1.04⅝ @ ⅜ and May 1.09⅞.

CORN—Corn displayed some strength at the outset which was followed by a break and then a fractional rally. Realizing sales being responsible for the easy tone. After starting at unchanged figures to ⅛c advance with ec. 64⅞ to 65, underwent a slight general decline and then something of a recovery.

Covering by previous sellers of corn brought about a sharp rise in the September delivery which sold up to 86½. Other months followed in its wake, the finish being near the best levels of the day or at gains varying from ½ to ⅝c to 2⅜c with Dec. 65⅝.

OATS—Oats started ⅛@¼ to ⅝c up ec. 39⅝ and held near the initial range.

PROVISIONS—Provisions were steady.

Those living in the wolf sector of Pleasant Springs will be interested in learning that there has been a change in the law with relation to wolf bounties. The new law holds that whole carcasses of the animals must be brought to the office of the county clerk five days after killing, instead of the town board chairmen as in the past. Upon presentation to the county clerk the animals will be punched so that double fees cannot be obtained. The bounty for full grown wolves, $30, will be paid entirely by the state. A bounty of $4 will be paid for the killing of wolf cubs from March 1 to the following Nov. 1. The bounty on foxes is $2 per animal.

"Safe for the Criminal But Unsafe for Society"

THE world—safe for democracy. Dane county—safe for the criminal.

Judge A. C. Hoppmann of the Dane county Superior court has just rendered a decision which, if carried out, will revolutionize the administration of law in this community. Judge Hoppmann, in an opinion given verbally, holds that search warrants, to be legal, must be supported by a sworn affidavit and cannot be issued on information and belief.

The decision was given in the case of a man arrested for moonshining on a warrant based on information and belief. A still, in operation, was seized on the farm of the man arrested. Judge Hoppmann released the man.

* * *

THE question decided by Judge Hoppmann has already been passed upon by the Supreme Court of Wisconsin. The supreme court took a different view than that entertained by the local judge in the case of the State vs. Davie. In this case, the court was asked to uphold the contention that a search warrant must be based on positive proof and a complaint alleging directly and positively that the dwelling was being used for the unlawful manufacture for sale of liquor. In other words, the court was asked to sustain the position that search warrants could not be issued on information and belief. The court refused to take such a position in the following language:

The rule contended for would make the execution of the criminal laws impracticable if not impossible, and many offenders would escape justice. It would be a very humane and safe rule for the criminal, but cruel and unsafe for society. The complainant may be in possession of such facts, by information or otherwise, as would give him good reason to believe that a certain person had committed an offense, and the persons who have knowledge of the facts of the crime may be either unable or unwilling to make complaint. What shall be done? Our statute sufficiently guards and protects the rights of accused persons, and, if strictly followed, there will be no danger of wanton or causeless arrests, and it is by our own statute that this complaint is to be tested.

* * *

"HUMANE and safe for the criminal but cruel and unsafe for society," said the Wisconsin Supreme court on the proposal to make warrants based on information and belief illegal.

Later the Supreme court went so far, in a case coming up from Milwaukee, to hold that a search warrant in a gambling case which was based on mere suspicion was legal.

"The rule contended for (which is the rule just enunciated by Judge Hoppmann) would make the execution of the criminal laws impracticable if not possible and many offenders would escape justice," says the Supreme court.

As No. 1 under this prophecy of the Supreme court it should be noted that a still was found on the farm of the defendant released by Judge Hoppman because the warrant was based on information and belief.

* * *

FOR years it has been the practice in Dane county to base warrants on information and belief. This is done in cases of murder, burglary and all felonies. If a new rule is now to be set up that every person who gives information to a prosecuting or enforcement official must become known to the public then it becomes self evident that much evidence which prosecuting officials NOW obtain will not be obtained.

Is the sacredness of a home more sacred than the life or liberty of an individual? A man may be charged with murder, the highest crime known to the law, in a complaint alleging the crime on information and belief. Why should not a search warrant, which permits an officer to search a dwelling house, be alleged in the same manner?

Are we going to put moonshiners in a privileged class or are we going to give the principle against information and belief general application? If so, where will we end in our efforts to suppress crime?

* * *

THE judiciary, we have always been told, is machinery set up to interpret the legislative intent. The legislature has no more than adjourned before Judge Hoppmann gives a decision clearly opposed to the legislative intent. The Sachtjen bill embodied the very principle which Judge Hoppmann has just enunciated in his decision. And yet the Sachtjen bill was defeated by the legislature.

That is the sort of thing that is bringing contempt for all law. The people are beginning to feel (and with much reason) that laws are made by judges and not by the representatives of the people—the legislature. The continued encroachment of the judiciary in the legislative field is making a mockery of all laws.

The people of Dane county who believe in law enforcement should ponder seriously over the Hoppmann opinion. According to the Wisconsin Supreme court:

"The rule contended for would make the execution of the criminal laws impracticable if not impossible, and many offenders would escape justice. It would be a very humane and safe rule for the criminal, but cruel and unsafe for society."

Criticises Governor

True Democrat Recalls Action of Blaine in the Stephenson Probe

(From the True Democrat)

Severson calls for an investigation. He sets forth some gruesome facts. If there be any substance to them, an investigation of the affairs of the capitol ought to be made by an impartial tribunal, or committee. This is due the innocent, and is merited by the guilty. Blaine calls for proof, and asks Severson to mention names. But it must not be forgotten that Blaine himself started the investigation of Ike Stephenson's campaign methods and expenditures, without mentioning names and without having the slightest proof of the existence of anything wrong. This fact Mr. Blaine had to admit when called before the committee having the investigation in charge. Severson should not be called upon to furnish names, for two very good seasons:

In the very nature of things he was not an eye witness to what transpired in the capitol. He had to rely upon information obtained from others for the fact he assumes to exist. If an investigation be held, then all of the persons possessing knowledge of the facts may be compelled to tell what they know about the charges. If Mr. Severson should charge John Joe or Richard Roe with criminal conduct in the capitol, and base his charges upon information he has received, and it should transpire that the fellow who gave him information was either not truthful, or has since been seen by the other side and converted to the cause of those whose conduct merits investigation, he might then find himself confronted by libed and slander suits which he would be obliged to defend at his own expense. Blaine appears to have forgotten how he started the Stephenson investigation. But Severson charges that Blaine knows enough facts now to warrant an investigation. If this be true, then Blaine needs no bill of particulars before taking steps to inspire investigation. Omitting entirely all charges of misconduct in the capitol, the Moran episode has always had a most unsavory smell. It looks gruesome on the surface, and will probably look worse in the interior. Why not have the investigators prod this unwholesome mess? At any rate, rumors concerning what went on in the capitol last winter should be probed to the bottom to the end that innocent persons, not at all connected with any wrongful conduct, but who because of failure to specify the guilty parties, are under the ban of suspicion, be acquitted. Surely, no governor should hesitate to take whatever steps may be needed to clear rumors which affect the best interests of the state, of which he is governor?

Editor Henry Roethe of the Fennimore Times announces that his famous legomobile has been displaced by an automobile. Henry has consistently opposed the ever-growing popularity of the automobile as much as he has "commissions" and such like during his term as state senator. But we have a hunch that Henry's political fences need looking after and the gas wagon is a mighty handy implement in locating breaks and making repairs. Step on 'er, Henry. You can't tell when the "herd" may stampede in this day of farm blocs and radical upheavals. However, our state senator is a "conservative" driver and will not likely be pinched for speeding over the "La Follette Progressive" highway. But look out for Highway 23," Henry. Heed the sign "Detour," and you may reach your destination without mishap.—Cassville Record.

Historic Faneuil Hall, the "Cradle of Liberty," in Boston, will not be defiled by the installation of a modern elevator. The hall is to be renovated in the near future and the city council has appropriated $200,000 to that end. All floors, walls and ceilings are to be covered with fireproof metal, and wooden awning supports will be replaced with fireproof construction. But patriots threaten to seek a grand jury indictment against anyone who would attempt to install an elevator. The Ancient and Honorable Artillery Company will continue to walk upstairs to their meetings.

Edward Page Gaston, an archeologist and brother of Lucy Page Gaston, of anti-cigaret fame, is searching at Gravesend, England, for the bones of the Indian Princess Pocahontas, whom he claims as an ancestor. Indignant Britons whose forbears lie buried with the legendary savior of Captain John Smith have threatened Gaston for violating their dead in his search. Although armed with a permit from the home office and accompanied by British anthropologists, he is meeting with much resistance. Marquis Curzon, foreign secretary, has added his voice to the protest against the search at Gravesend.

Poems That Live

THE NYMPH'S S[ONG] TO HYLAS

I know a little garden close,
Set thick with lily and red r[ose],
Where I would wander if I m[ight]
From dewy dawn to dewy night,
And have one with me wandering.

And though within it no birds sing,
And though no pillar'd house is there,
And though the apple boughs are bare
Of fruit and blossom, would to God,
Her feet upon the green grass trod,
And I beheld them as before!

There comes a murmur from the shore,
And in the place two fair streams are,
Drawn from the purple hills afar,
Drawn down unto the restless sea;
The hills whose flowers ne'er fed the bee,
The shore no ship has ever seen,
Still beaten by the billows green,
Whose murmur comes unceasingly
Unto the place for which I cry.

For which I cry both day and night,
For which I let slip all delight,
That maketh me both deaf and blind,
Careless to win, unskilled to find,
And quick to lose what all men seek.

Yet tottering as I am, and weak,
Still have I left a little breath
To seek within the jaws of death
An entrance to that happy place;
To seek the unforgotten face
Once seen, once kiss'd, once reft from me
Anigh the murmuring of the sea.

—William Norris.

Education Problem

Our Problem Lies in Teaching Second Generation, Says Gerard

James W. Gerard, former American ambassador to Germany, said recently:

"Any reformer who is face to face with an impossible task usually sighs: 'Oh, well, we can do nothing with the present generation. They are fixed in their ways. But with the new generation we will alter things. They will improve and rise to the impulse of education.' Thus this country, faced with the difficulties of assimilating a large immigration of totally dissimilar races, has often been unable to make much impression on the first generation. But the second, having passed through American public school, has speedily become American. As we all know it is almost impossible to eradicate the things that have been learned in childhood. Therefore, let us raise the child with ideals of country and of life. He must not assimilate prejudices. We wish to remain a free people and have the world free to all worthful ideas."

ONE'S-SELF I SING

One's-self I sing, a simple separate person,
Yet utter the word Democratic, the word En-Masse.
Of physiology from top to toe I sing,
Not physiognomy alone nor brain alone is worthy for the Muse—I say the Form complete is worthier far,
The female equally with the male I sing.
Of Life immense in passion, pulse and power,
Cheerful, for freest action form'd under the laws divine,
The Modern Man I sing.

The married man,
The doctors say,
Hath here on earth
A longer day;
Now single men
Will say that's wrong—
That married life
Just seemeth long.

ONLY WOMAN PATENT ATTORNEY

By CARL SCHURZ LOWDEN

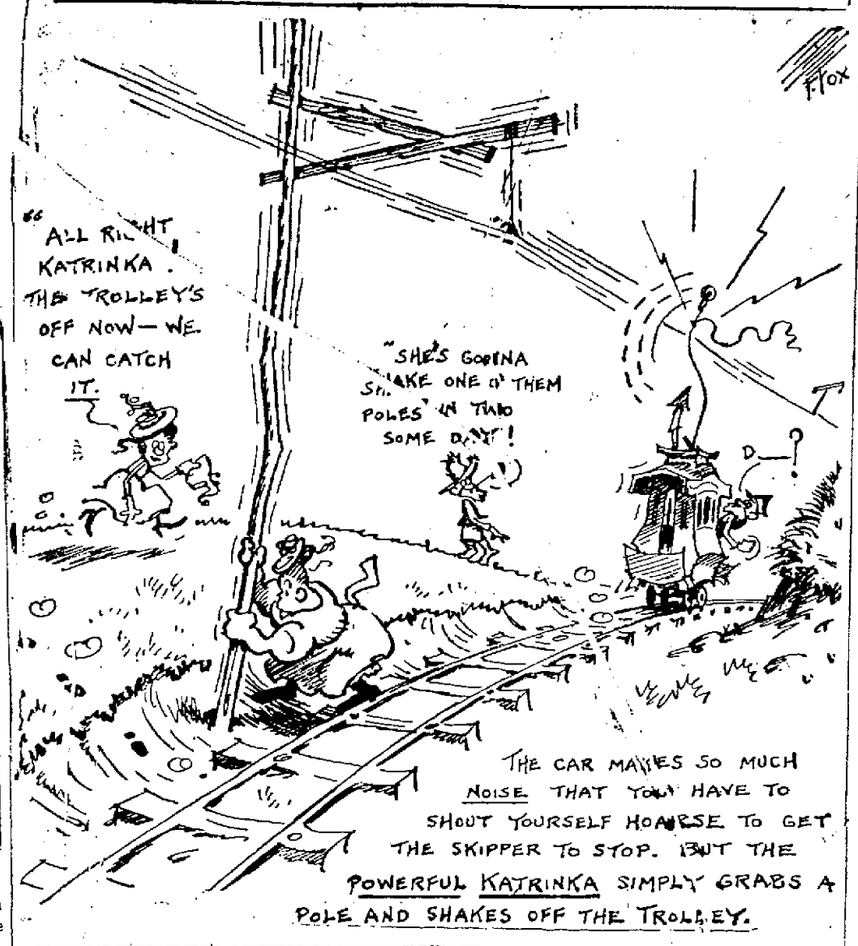

THINK of the many women who earned a few dollars a week as housemaids or "hired girls" 30 or 40 years ago. How many of them had the will power, the grit, the determination to amount to something? How many of them did? Not many. But one of these who did is Florence King, eminent citizen of Chicago, who has yet to taste defeat before the United States Supreme Court. She is the only woman honored by having her name placed on the government's register of patent attorneys. She heads the National Women's Association of Commerce and is the only woman member in the Illinois branch of the American Association of Engineers.

Florence King is now known internationally. The Montreal Star succinctly sketched the low-light and the high-light in the amazing career of this woman when it thus presented her:

"Twenty years ago earning $1.25 a week; today a Chicago attorney licensed to practice in the United States Supreme Court, and with the record of having put a $5,000,000 corporation entirely out of existence by proving in open court that the corporation was wrong and that her client was right. These are the extremes of the achievements of Florence King who is a self-made woman if ever there was one."

That overworked word or phrase, "self-made," peculiarly applies to Miss King. Her father and mother were Iowa pioneers; in that state she was born. She became a half orphan at five years of age when her mother had to shoulder the family burden alone. Those days of hardship and rigorous efforts forged a bond of attachment between mother and daughter which is much in evidence today; for they are real pals with the surviving parent intensely proud of the outstanding and noteworthy success her daughter has gained through unceasing endeavor.—Exchange.

Just Folks

OUR COUNTRY

Our country has it for you, whatever joy you love—
The great wide sea before you, the great blue sky above,
And would you choose the mountains, the rugged peaks and tall,
Where race the streaming fountains, our country has them all.

Our country holds your pleasure, whatever that pleasure be,
Within her bounteous measure the world's rich charms you'll see;
Southward the palms are swaying, inland her white lakes shine,
What ground choose you for playing? 'Tis here, by God's design.

Would you hear forests singing the anthems of the trees,
Or see the wild ducks winging across the lake in V's?
Or would the partridge whirring, or would a moose's call
Set drowsy pulses stirring? Our country has them all.

With all she gives of splendor, 'tis little that she asks:
From tyranny defend her, be faithful to your tasks.
Whatever joy you cherish, 'tis here where men are free—
Then let not freedom perish, but live for liberty.

A certain painter is confined in an asylum, says Art Record. To persons who visit him he says:

"Look at this; it is my latest masterpiece."

They look, and see nothing but an expanse of white canvas. They ask:

"What does that represent?

"That? Why, that represents the passage of the Israelites through the Red Sea."

"Beg pardon, but where is the sea?"

"It has been driven back."

"And where are the Israelites?"

"They have crossed over."

"And the Egyptians?"

"Will be here directly. That's the sort of painting I like—simple and unpretentious."

Little Johnnie, aged six, had been to church and had displayed more than usual interest in the sermon, in which the origin of Eve had been dwelt on at some length, recites Tit-Bits.

On his return from service, there being guests at dinner, he had also displayed a good deal of interest in the eatables, especially the pie and cakes.

Some time afterward, being missed, he was found sitting quietly in a corner with his hands pressed tightly over his ribs and an expression of awful anxiety on his face.

"Why, what on earth is the matter?" asked his mother in alarm.

"Mama, I'm afraid I'm going to have a wife," little Johnnie replied.

ANOTHER PRODIGY

Dear Roy—To help fill the gap caused by some of your delinquent contributors, let me tell you that this "Birdie" girl, who operates the typewriter with only four fingers, has nothing on me. I can do it with two.—Hunter Peck.

Each of us owes $96 of the public debt, according to statistics. We have paid our share several times over this year in income tax.

We are deeply dismayed by the latest news from London—news of an international importance. It happens to strike close at home. The news is that the dinner jacket, or, as Americans call it, "Tuxedo," has passed entirely out of style, and all men of fashion now wear tail coats in the evening for every sort of function. Recently it was noted that during the supper hour at the Savoy not a dinner coat was to be seen. We take this as a personal grievance. Only about a month ago we went and bought a new dinner jacket with a swell satin collar, and we paid $38.75 for the outfit, which, of course, is now just money thrown away. The old tail coat was legislated out of existence a year ago by the moths. We hardly know what to do about this, but we have a word of cheer from the gentleman down in the basement of our house who presses clothing. He claims he can fasten a couple of tails onto this dinner jacket, but, of course, the grafting point will always show. The life of man of fashion is cluttered up with difficulties, because, of course, if dinner jackets are taboo in London, far be it from us—.
